

PARENTING with LOVE and LOGIC

Hosted by the Atlanta Speech School's Rollins Center for Language & Learning

Tuesdays, January 29 - March 11, 2008 • 9:00 to 11:00 am

Love and Logic is a philosophy of raising and teaching children which allows adults to be happier, empowered, and more skilled in their interactions with children. Love and Logic is a way of working with children that puts parents back in control, teaches children to be reasonable, and prepares young people to live in the real world, with its many choices and consequences. The philosophy encourages healthy communication between parent and child and gives a glimpse of how a healthy family functions. The Love and Logic techniques are simple, practical, easy to learn, and can be applied immediately.

Read what past participants have to say about Parenting with Love and Logic:

- “Parenting with Love and Logic was the best seminar I have ever attended. The presenter held my attention from the beginning to the end. The Love and Logic method made so much sense and it makes me strive to be a better parent. I also think Love and Logic will enhance children’s vocabulary exponentially.”
- “I liked learning ways to discipline in a more calm, controlled manner, rather than yelling and screaming.”

Facilitated by Donna Patterson, Ed.S., NCSP

In addition to working with students in the Wardlaw School, Katherine Hamm Center and Kenan Preschool as a school psychologist, Mrs. Patterson is a certified Love and Logic facilitator. Prior to joining the faculty at the Speech School, Donna was a special education teacher specializing in children with emotional and behavioral difficulties.
